During the entire academic session he demonstrated his talent and versatility on a number of occasions. He was regular in classes and punctual in submitting assignments. He actively participated in extracurricular activities and school annual functions. He was very eager to learn and was always willing to put extra efforts on his studies. He remained very confident throughout the session. He conducted himself as someone who could easily adapt himself as per the need of the situation. He was quite resilient and therefore he stayed in high spirits and was not afraid of different challenges that he had to face from time to time.

He demonstrated immense learning potential in him. Being very receptive in nature he always welcomed learning from his teachers and peers. His learning was always deep and profound because he applied his knowledge in his real life.

He is multitalented. During his school days he maintained a proper balance in academic and co-academic pursuits. He put his heart and soul into all kinds of school activities and that is how he could develop a harmoniously developed personality. He took keen interest in sports also. Due to his focused participation in sports we always found him very alert, agile and humble.
